Caught web-handed in Berlin

Narcissism. Montreal police say accused fugitive's obsession with himself on the web led to his downfall

Fugitive suspected killer Luka Rocco Magnotta was surfing Internet sites, reading about himself when police arrested him Monday afternoon at a little cybercafé in Berlin.

"Okay, you've got me," Magnotta, 29, told police after first giving a false name, Berlin Police spokesman Thomas Neuendorf said.

"He gave up without resistance" around 1:30 p.m. at the Helin Tele-und Internetcafé, Neuendorf said.

Magnotta, whom European media have dubbed the "Canadian Psycho," was taken to a prison cell, where he will remain until his extradition to Canada, Neuendorf said.

Montreal police spokesman Ian Lafreniere said at an afternoon news conference that Magnotta's fingerprints matched his Interpol profile.

How long the extradition will take isn't yet clear, Lafreniere said.

Kadir Anlayisli, who works at the Internet café on Karl Marx Strasse in the Neukolln district of Berlin, spotted Magnotta, the subject of an international manhunt, when he walked in.

Anlayisli, 42, told a Turkish-language newspaper in Germany that he recognized Magnotta. He flagged down a police car and several officers converged on the shop.

Magnotta had been the subject of an international manhunt for the gruesome killing and dismemberment Jun Lin, 33, a Chinese student at Montreal's Concordia University.

Lin's torso was found in a suitcase left for garbage collection outside Magnotta's Montreal apartment last week. Other severed body parts, including a hand and a foot, were mailed to the offices of the federal Conservatives and Liberals.

Mental illness 'nothing to be ashamed of,' Close says

Health. Oscar nominee in town for conference on combatting stigma

Actress Glenn Close, centre, her nephew Calen Pick and sister Jessie Close pose for a photo in Ottawa on Monday. FRED CHARTRAND/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Talking about mental illness is scary, but Oscar-nominated actress Glenn Close told a conference in Ottawa Monday it's the best way to confront the stigma surrounding the topic and get people the help they need.

Close brought her sister and nephew to share their personal struggles with mental illness at the Together Against Stigma Conference — a gathering touted by the Mental Health Commission of Canada as the world's largest international conference on eliminating mental-health stigma. Nearly 600 researchers, mental-health professionals and policy makers are attending the three-day conference.

Close's sister Jessie was suicidal while suffering from bipolar disorder, and her nephew Calen Pick suffers from schizoaffective disorder.

Close said coming out about her family's problems was intimidating and she even wondered what impact it might have on her acting career. Then, she considered what might happen if she did nothing.

"That's not an option," she said. "If anything, it makes me more determined."

Jessie Close and Pick went public with their illnesses when they joined the actress to help launch Bring Change 2 Mind, a non-profit organization dedicated to eradicating the stigma and discrimination around mental illness.

Glenn Close said one of the best things families can do when confronted with a mental illness is to start small by talking about it with a family member, and then reach out to a community organization for help.

"It's tremendously important that we come out," said Close. "There's nothing to be ashamed of. You're not alone."

More information about the conference, which wraps up Wednesday at the Delta Ottawa City Centre, is available at togetheragainststigma2012.ca.

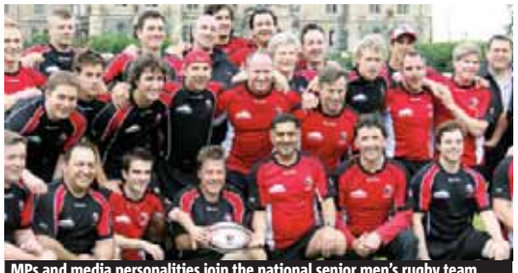
Politicians, reporters in different kind of scrum



MPs and media personalities join the national senior men's rugby team on Parliament Hill Monday for a pickup game ahead of tournaments in Ottawa this August. GRAHAM LANKTREE/METRO

Andrew Scheer, Speaker of the House of Commons, Justin Trudeau, and other MPs and media personalities teamed up to take on members of the national senior men's rugby team on Parliament Hill Monday.

Organized sports aren't allowed on the hill and the game marks only the second time that rule has been broken, said Pat Craven of Rugby Canada.

The first was last year when rugby was also played on Parliament's front lawn.

"It's a nice way to get to know these guys outside the chambers," said Scheer.

The game was a way to raise the profile of the sport, which is coming to Ottawa in August for a series of men's and women's games. Winners will go to the Olympic qualifiers at the Rugby Sevens World Cup in Moscow next year and possibly the 2016 Summer Olympics in Rio de Janeiro.

"Canada's women's team has a good chance at winning the Olympics. They've beaten every other top country, including world champ Wales," said Rugby Canada CEO Graham Brown. "So we're very excited about these games coming to Ottawa."

Bill C-38. Ecoactivists protesting budget omnibus bill they say is short-circuiting environmental laws

graham.lanktree@metronews.ca

Some 500 organizations are blacking out their websites in a day of protest against Bill C-38, the government omnibus budget, and its clampdown on environmental charities doing advocacy work.

"Bill C-38 is reflective of a deeply troubling pattern to silence voices talking about environmental issues," said Alex Neve, secretary general for Amnesty International Canada, flanked by representatives from the Sierra Club and Environmental Defence.

Replacing the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act, the bill brings in new rules for environmental charities that advocate for better laws and policies, limiting how much advocacy work those groups can do. The law can also override National Energy Board decisions and will speed up the environmental-review process by reducing the number of studies conducted and shutting out citizen groups from environmental appraisals of pipelines.

One-third of Bill C-38 is designed to circumvent environmental laws, says Rick Smith, executive director of Environmental Defence.
GRAHAM LANKTREE/METRO

"The government did not run with the gutting of the Environmental Assessment Act and Fisheries Act as part of its platform," said Rick Smith, executive director of Environmental Defence, who said one-third of the bill looks at short-circuiting environmental laws.

The bill will cut the number of environmental advisers working in the government and scuttle the National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy, which had been releasing documents on how Canada could cope with climate change.

"Today, hundreds of organizations and individuals are speaking out in support of two core Canadian values: The protection of nature and democratic discussion," scientist Dr. David Suzuki said. "These values are the foundation of the peace, order and good government that define our nation, yet they are threatened by the federal government's omnibus budget bill, C-38."

The action is led by the David Suzuki Foundation, Ecojustice, Greenpeace, the Pembina Institute and Sierra Club Canada.

Sentenced. Woman convicted of manslaughter for drowning two sons

A woman who drowned her two young sons in the bathtub of the family home was sentenced Monday to six years for manslaughter, but will be eligible for parole in less than a year.

Allyson McConnell, who is originally from Australia, is getting two-for-one credit for the time she has already spent in Alberta Hospital in Edmonton, meaning there are 15 months left in her sentence. She will be eligible for parole in 10 months.

Justice Michelle Crighton recommended McConnell remain at the mental hospital until doctors believe she is well enough to be transferred to another facility.

She pointed out McConnell might never go free because she is still under a mental health warrant and it is up to her treatment team to decide if she is well enough to return to society.

The boys' grandmother and father cried in court, but McConnell sat quietly and showed no emotional. When asked by the judge if she had anything to say, she answered simply: "no."

McConnell was originally charged with second-degree murder, but Crighton convicted her of manslaughter in April. The judge said there was a "black hole" in McConnell's memory and no one could know whether the depressed and suicidal woman meant to kill her boys.

McConnell and her husband were in the middle of a bitter divorce and she wanted to take their children back to Australia.

The Crown is appealing the manslaughter conviction.

Emotional Case

The boy's paternal grandparents have each made emotional statements.

- The grandfather questioned whether the sentence would stop people from killing children. "This is crazy. I can't believe it," he said.
- "I cried for days knowing there would be no new ones," the grandmother said after cleaning fingerprints left by the children.

Eaton Centre. Toronto shooting likely not gang-related, police say

The deadly weekend shooting rampage at the landmark Eaton Centre was not likely gang related, Toronto police said Monday.

Christopher Husbands, 23, of Toronto, turned himself in early Monday and faces one count of first-degree murder and six counts of attempted murder, said Det. Sgt. Brian Borg, the lead investigator in the case.

Husbands is known to police and at the time of the shooting, was under house arrest for a previous charge, Borg revealed at a news conference.

There are indications that Husbands and the 24-year-old man who died in Saturday's shooting, who police have said was believed to have gang ties, knew each other, Borg added.

Regardless, Borg said, "I do not believe that this is a gang-motivated homicide. I believe there's personal aspects involved."

The shooting at the shopping centre also left six people wounded and a pregnant woman needed hospital treatment after she was trampled.

Pope criticizes nun's book on sexuality

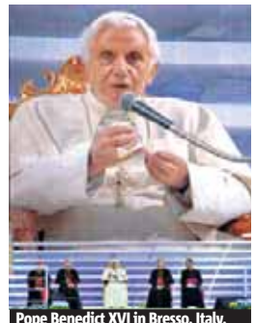
Controversy.
Author takes an unorthodox approach to masturbation, homosexuality

The Vatican on Monday sharply criticized a book on sexuality written by a prominent American nun, saying it contradicted church teaching on issues like masturbation, homosexuality and marriage and that its author had a "defective understanding" of Catholic theology.

The Vatican's orthodoxy office said the book, Just Love: A Framework for Christian Sexual Ethics, by Sister Margaret Farley, a member of the Sisters of Mercy religious order and emeritus professor of Christian ethics at Yale Divinity School, posed "grave harm" to the faithful.

The Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith said that in the 2006 book, Farley either ignored church teaching on core issues of human sexuality or treated it as merely one opinion among many.

Farley said she never intended the book to reflect official Catholic teaching. Rather, she said, she wrote it to explore sexuality via various religious traditions, theological resources and human experience.



Pope Benedict XVI in Bresso, Italy.
ANTONIO CALANNI/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Farley critique, signed by the American head of the congregation, Cardinal William Levada, comes amid the Vatican's recent crackdown on the largest umbrella group of American sisters. The Vatican last month essentially imposed martial law on the Leadership Conference of Women Religious, accusing it of undermining church teaching and imposing certain "radical feminist themes" that were incompatible with Catholicism.

The Vatican singled out specific problems in Farley's book, which it said "affirms positions that are in direct contradiction with Catholic teaching in the field of sexual morality."

Farley, for example, writes that masturbation doesn't raise any moral problems and can actually help relationships. The Vatican asserted that according to church teaching "masturbation is an intrinsically and gravely disordered action."

Farley wrote that homosexuals and their activities should be respected. Church teaching holds that gays should be respected but that homosexual acts are "intrinsically disordered."

On gay marriage, Farley said legal recognition of gay marriage can help transform the stigmatization of gays. Levada wrote back that approving gay marriage would not only signal approval of "deviant behaviour" but would obscure the value of traditional marriage.

Facebook. Site testing kid-friendly access

Though Facebook bans children under 13, millions of them have profiles on the site by lying about their age.

The company is now testing ways to allow those kids to participate without needing to lie. This would likely be under parental supervision, such as by connecting children's accounts to their parents' accounts.

Such information collection is central to Facebook. Every photo or status update a kid posts on Facebook could count as information collection. Many companies consider the parental-consent requirement too burdensome, so they simply ban all children under 13 instead.

There are an estimated 7.5 million kids under 13 on Facebook, out of more than 900 million users worldwide.

In a statement, Facebook noted that many recent reports have highlighted "just how difficult it is to enforce age restrictions on the Internet, especially when parents want their children to access online content and services."

Few details are available on the nature of Facebook's tests, which The Wall Street Journal reported on in Monday's editions.

The report comes just two weeks after Facebook began trading stock as a public company.

Air Canada shareholders OK airline's executive pay plan

Looking low-cost. Company still focusing on discount carrier at annual meeting

Members of the Air Canada Pilots Association march in protest in front of the company's annual meeting in Calgary, Monday. The pilots have been without a contract for more than a year. JEFF MCINTOSH/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Air Canada's top executive says the launch of a new low-cost carrier remains a top priority for the airline, as it grapples to make profound changes to the way it does business.

"We need to participate in this segment of the market in one manner or another," Air Canada chief executive Calin Rovinescu said Monday in a speech to shareholders.

He said Air Canada is sensitive to the views of its pilots and wants to make sure that whatever time frame it takes with the low-cost carrier is consistent with the discussions the arbitration process set up by the federal government.

The pilots are one of two major labour groups at Air Canada without a collective agreement. The other union is the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, which represents repair and ramp crews.

Both disputes will be resolved by a mediator ordered by the federal government, which brought in back-to-work legislation after Air Canada locked out the pilots and the Machinists announced they would go on strike. Shareholders overwhelmingly approved a new policy on executive compensation while Air Canada pilots held an information picket outside the downtown hotel.

The largely symbolic resolution passed with 91.85 per cent approval.

The main opposition came from Air Canada Pilots Association president Paul Strachan.

He argued giving double-digit compensation increases to top executives while extolling austerity to employees is hypocritical. Pay for Air Canada's CEO fell 12 per cent last year but payouts of the airline's other four highest-pad top executives soared even though continued losses drove the airline's share price down more than 70 per cent.

Economy. Feds would respond in crisis: Flaherty

Ottawa would move to backstop the Canadian economy if the European crisis triggers a second global financial shock, Finance Minister Jim Flaherty said Monday.

With economic conditions deteriorating in most parts of the world, and especially in Europe, Flaherty told reporters that the major advantage Canada has over many others is room to act.

"Our situation is imperfect but it's better," he told reporters.

Flaherty said he will discuss the worsening economic climate with his Group of Seven colleagues in a conference call Tuesday morning, but made it clear he considers the situation grave.

Global markets have fallen sharply in the past few days as news coming out of Europe worsened, with Spain joining Greece on the crisis watch list.

On Monday, Portugal's finance minister said foreign bailout creditors were providing another batch of the country's $96 billion US rescue package.

SURVIVING YOUR BEST FRIEND'S WEDDING

SHE SAYS...
Jessica Napier
metronews.ca/shesays

It is officially wedding season. Both the time of year and my mid-to-late-twenty-something status mean that my once barren mailbox is now overflowing with invitations, save-the-dates and thank-you cards from betrothed friends and family members.

As spring rolls into summer, bridal banter seems to be at the top of the agenda at every social gathering. Everyone I know is attending, participating or initiating a wedding in the coming months. In fact, I am taking my inaugural run at being a bridesmaid this upcoming weekend.

Historically, bridesmaids and groomsmen have some interesting origins. Once upon a time, Roman law required that each wedding involve 10 witnesses dressed in similar clothing. The superstitious rationale behind this tradition was that the co-ordinating men and women would confuse any evil spirits present at the wedding and make it difficult to identify the actual bride and groom.

Bridesmaid 101

Wedding-minutia madness can make a completely rational person relatively bonkers. A friend you've seen shrug off a pregnancy scare or an email breakup will freak out over finding the correct Pantone shade of lavender or choosing between a serif versus sans serif invitation font.

Today, modern bridesmaids' duties are a bit more demanding than posing in matching gowns to ward off bad luck. Beyond simply assisting with wedding logistics and emotional support, you must also be a personal assistant, stylist, shrink, floral design technician, corset lacer, eyelash gluer, cake icing consultant and so on.

Saying yes to the bridesmaid dress is a very big deal. It can be a rewarding honour to stand beside your friend on her big day, but you shouldn't make a commitment without understanding what you're getting yourself into. Some friends will get married on weekdays, out of province or internationally; they'll want multiple ceremonies, elaborate engagement parties, three separate bridal showers and week-long bachelorette getaways.

I know what you're thinking, oh that won't happen to me; my friends are just so easygoing. But be warned, even your chilled out bestie might have an inner bridezilla lurking inside of her.

Wedding-minutia madness can make a completely rational person relatively bonkers. A friend you've seen shrug off a pregnancy scare or an email breakup will freak out over finding the correct Pantone shade of lavender or choosing between a serif versus sans serif invitation font.

As a bridesmaid, you might be expected to fork over hundreds if not thousands of dollars on plane tickets, hotel rooms, outfits and alterations, gifts, hair, makeup, nails, and other items all in an effort to recreate the bride-to-be's Pinterest wedding vision board.

On the big day, your laborious bridesmaid experience will culminate in 24 hours of stressful jubilation. You'll smile gracefully at the photographer, in that pre-selected shade of lilac lipstick that you'll never wear again, because you are truly happy for your friend and because in just a few hours, it'll all be over.

Thousands of flag-waving fans gathered to watch British music royalty celebrate Queen Elizabeth II with a Buckingham Palace concert. But the queen's husband, Prince Philip, missed the concert after being hospitalized with a bladder infection.

- The monarch's own musical tastes are a mystery, as it was reported she brought earplugs to a similar concert a decade ago.
- According to The Guardian, the only song the queen has ever been known to request is Some Enchanted Evening from the musical South Pacific.

Starz says goodbye to Spartacus

Starz network says it is ending its highly successful Spartacus saga next season. In an unusual move announced Monday, Starz will conclude this action-adventure series while it's still a big hit, and after logging only three seasons (or four, counting a "prequel" season). This season the series drew six million viewers, an enormous number for a paid subscription channel. Creator and executive producer Steven S. DeKnight promises a "stunningly epic" final season. That 10-episode cycle, which will kick off next January, is currently filming in New Zealand. The series stars Liam McIntyre as the Thracian-slave-turned-revolutionary who's out to topple the Roman Empire. McIntyre took over the role from Andy Whitfield, who starred the first season, then withdrew due to illness. He died of cancer in September 2011.

On the eve of the film's opening, the talent assemble in Toronto to talk about making a Cronenberg flick

RICHARD CROUSE

Last year Robert Pattinson, Paul Giamatti and homegrown stars Emily Hampshire, Sarah Gadon and Kevin Durand gathered in Toronto to shoot Cosmopolis, a dark drama for director David Cronenberg.

On Monday the cast reunited with their director for a press conference I hosted at a downtown Toronto hotel in advance of the movie opening in theatres on Friday.

The tone of the conference was light, and the camaraderie of the cast obvious. Here are some of the highlights:

"I don't know what I was more excited about," said Hampshire, "having David bend over me and show Robert how to get a prostate exam, or Rob bending over me and getting one."

Actress Emily Hampshire on one of her favourite Cosmopolis scenes.

"You don't have to choose," quipped Cronenberg.

Cronenberg also offered up some tongue-in-cheek advice for filmmakers. "I use a little Apple program called iDirector. A little green light goes on if it is OK, or a red light if you need to do another take. It's pretty straightforward. You can all use it."

Later the director commented on why he wanted his actors to speak the lines of the script exactly as written. "I don't want the actors to be screenwriters," he said, they're not designed for that."

"There were no rewrites," Pattinson chimes in.

"Normally that is the first thing you think about as an actor. And you are so used to just changing it the whole time, on every single movie, that with this, once you suddenly got to the idea that you are not changing anything, the script is fine, it's you that are the problem, at least you knew one thing."

Pattinson has a tour-de-force scene at the end of the film, a 22-page two-hander opposite Oscar nominee Paul Giamatti. The Sideways star took a quick break from shooting Rock of Ages in Miami to appear in Cosmopolis.

"Fortunately the other movie wasn't terribly demanding on me," Giamatti joked. "It was a musical that I was doing and I didn't have to sing or dance. I just had to show up and crack jokes."

"I was panicked about it," he says of his quick turnaround in Toronto.

"This thing was intimidating. The length and the language. So I bothered everyone on the other movie to read this thing with me. Fortunately Malin Ackerman made a great Rob Pattinson.

"She was fantastic. I was very disappointed when actually I got here and it was Rob."

John Carter

Director. Andrew Stanton

Stars. Taylor Kitsch, Lynn Collins, Willem Dafoe

Disney's sci-fi fantasy bomb cost somewhere between a squillion and a bajillion dollars to make and sell. So where did all that loot go? The screenplay by writer/director Andrew Stanton (Finding Nemo, WALL-E) and co-writers Mark Andrews and Michael Chabon is far too faithful to Burroughs' ancient babble, while at the same time being deaf to modern interests. Such things as humour, thrills and genuine jeopardy are seriously lacking here. John Carter, a peace-loving space traveller from the Wild West (played by Canada's Taylor Kitsch), is smothered by CGI and bad dialogue as he journeys from Civil War-era Arizona to Mars, here called Barsoom. On this red planet, the Tharks are at odds with each other and apparently at war with the bloodthirsty Zodangans. And what of the Heliumites? Will peacenik Carter stay and fight? John Carter shares more with a Dr. Seuss cartoon than it does with any self-respecting live-action interstellar adventure.

Rogue ex-CIA agent Tobin Frost (Denzel Washington), lectures to rookie sleuth Matt Weston (Ryan Reynolds) that spies need to "take advantage of people's desires to believe, to trust." I know the feeling. With a cast this promising — Brendan Gleeson, Vera Farmiga and Sam Shepard are included — and potential alchemy between the two leads, I was hoping for this chase thriller from director Daniel Espinosa to be more than an homage to the Bourne franchise and to Tony Scott films. Consider me suckered. Safe House starts off well enough, but script problems soon have the film sagging, as the characters played by Washington and Reynolds rarely get to match wits or fists.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

That's the way it is: Kate had to hear it, but Celine had to holler it

THE WORD
Monica Weymouth
scene@metronews.ca

Back in March, Kate Winslet admitted that she, like the rest of us, becomes physically sick upon hearing the opening chords of Titanic's theme song My Heart Will Go On.

"I just have to sit there, you know, kind of straight-faced with a massive internal eye roll," she told MTV News, adding that the song made her "feel like throwing up."

Now, Celine Dion is empathizing with her — although very diplomatically, considering the chart-topper essentially let her take a decade-long vacation from the real world and its relentless department store playlists.

"My Heart Will Go On gave me the opportunity to be associated with a classic that will live forever.

If I just count how many times I've sung it, maybe it'll get me sick," she said on the Today Show yesterday. "If she feels tired just hearing it, and, like, throwing up, I'm glad she was not the one singing it."

As much as we want to enjoy this, the sad, dejected echo of her signature chest thump is getting in the way.

Adele on Awards: First I would like to Spanx...

The usually press-shy Adele sat down with Matt Lauer for an interview, during which she admitted that she was a bit worried about her appearance at this year's Grammy Awards.

"I had three or four pairs of Spanx on that night but I loved it," she said, laughing. "I actually had another dress made and I ended up passed out in it. It had a corset and I was like, 'I can't wear that,' so I ended up wearing this instead." Adele admits, though, that when it came time to perform on the Grammy stage, "I took a couple of pairs off."

Sadder than The Notebook: Gosling ain't single

Looks like those breakup rumours can be put to rest, as Ryan Gosling and Eva Mendes have been going everywhere together. After being spotted in New York last month, the pair were out and about in L.A. Friday running errands before heading to the airport Saturday for a flight to Montreal, according to People magazine. The pair have been dating for nearly a year.

SNOW WHITE GETS SERIOUS

In her new film Snow White and The Huntsman, Twilight actress Kristen Stewart plays a dark and violent version of the classic fairy tale heroine. She's up for a sword fight, knows how to throw a punch and lead an army of men to fight her enemies. But off screen she also had to conquer a long-term personal issue.

STEWART FACES FEAR AND SADDLES UP

ROMINA McGUINNESS
romina.mcguinness@metro.lu

Kristen Stewart isn't scared of blood sucking vampires or monstrous werewolves. She's not even put off by drinking her own blood. But there is one thing she is scared of ... horses. As a youngster she broke and dislocated her elbow falling off a horse and has been reluctant to get back in the saddle ever since. But much to Stewart's dismay, her Snow White character in Snow White and the Huntsman is no damsel in distress and spends most of the film on horse back as she escapes the clutches of the Evil Queen. Metro spoke to Sam Dent, Stewart's horse riding instructor, to find out how she finally overcame her fear of falling.

Overcoming fear

"I could tell she was nervous from day one. But that's only natural for someone scarred by a bad fall to let their nerves get the best of them, but there isn't much you can actually do to help other than reassure them," Dent tells Metro.

Large team

The number of horses galloping behind Kristen Stewart during one of the fight scenes in Snow White and the Huntsman.

Taking the reins

Horse riding is an exercise in itself and you'll need to be fighting fit if you're going to give it your all ... and not fall off the horse. As an exercise, the effort required to remain seated in an upright position has both cardio and toning benefits, especially in the gallop. But unlike most sports, you're not in control. "The horse — a very powerful creature — is," says Dent. "If they don't want to do something, you need to be physically and mentally strong to handle them."

Lucky for Dent, Stewart was a keen learner

"Kristen was fully concentrated on conquering her fears. Her and Rusty, her horse (they got on great, by the way) would start by spending 15 to 20 minutes in the enclosed arena. Once she got comfortable, we would go into canter (a three time gait with the horse placing one leg, then two together and then the remaining leg on the ground) in the open field. It's funny because when she was on her horse, her nerves didn't show and she never did anything reckless. She was listening and acting like she was confident, even though she wasn't."

Being a Bare devil

Another challenge for Stewart was learning how to ride bareback — that is, without a saddle. Removing the saddle is a risk, as it requires the rider to exert a higher level of balance and coordination in order to remain on the horse. The absence of a supporting tree and padding between the rider's seat bones and the horse's spine means it's not exactly the most comfortable riding style. "Bareback riding is very fatiguing as you no longer have the saddle to keep you steady" adds Dent.

Thankfully, Stewart was fit enough to cope, thanks to her stunt training with the 'boys,' co-stars Chris Hemsworth, Sam Claflin and co.

Quoted

"When Stewart's horse, Rusty, did something unexpected, she would tell him off and be like 'dude, you can't do that to me!'"

Sam Dent
Stewart's horse riding instructor

What did Dent think of her pupil's overall performance?

"Kristen was completely knackered by the end of filming as she had taken up so much extra work physically. The actual riding she did was pretty basic but she's a good rider."

But what about the Huntsman's riding skills? We know Chris Hemsworth has the advantage of an action hero past, but did this help him ride a horse?

"Chris was a natural. I just needed to bring him back up to speed because even though he'd ridden before, his style was a little too 'cowboyish.' I had to straighten him up a bit," reveals Dent. Want to know a fun fact? Hemsworth's horse was called Pinocchio. Not what you'd expect a hunter's horse to be called, but cute.

Beauty pick

Try this if you want fairy-tale-glowing skin

"Massaging your skin every night with firm circular movements using the tips of your fingers will give it an instant glow. Start at the neck and work your way up the face, then around the eyes. Half a minute is enough to boost blood circulation and oxygen to the surface of the skin."

When it comes to being active, kids could use a boost: Report

CELIA MILNE

Only seven per cent of kids are active enough: study. ISTOCK PHOTO

Our children got an "F" in active play.

That's the mark Canadian kids received on the 2012 report card issued by Active Healthy Kids Canada. The report found that 63 per cent of children's free time after school and on weekends is sedentary.

"I don't like the idea of them hanging out on the streets or going to the park unsupervised," says Genevieve Lopes, 34, a single mom in Toronto who lives in a basement apartment with her daughters Ashley, 13, and Larissa, 9. "If you don't keep them busy, kids just sit and text."

Lopes, who is currently on disability from a full-time bank job, feels lucky to have found St. Alban's Boys and Girls Club, where the girls swim, skateboard and rock climb after school.

But millions of Canadian parents are challenged to meet the guideline of keeping kids active for an hour a day. Only seven per cent of children are meeting that goal.

What can parents do to boost their children's physical activity levels? "Chill out and get out," says Dr. Mark Tremblay, chief scientific officer of Active Healthy Kids Canada in Ottawa. He suggests that parents model an active lifestyle by "playing" outside. Another suggestion is to limit screen time (including texting) to no more than two hours a day. Some kids are currently plugged in for a whopping eight hours a day.

"Resist buying a new video game, TV, or computer and instead dedicate that money to active play equipment such as a hockey net, a basketball net, a new bike, a skipping rope, driveway chalk, or a ball," says Tremblay.

IT'S STILL NOT TOO LATE FOR STUDENTS TO FIND A SUMMER JOB

The arrival of June may bring a sense of panic in university students still without a summer job, but it's not too late to land a post that will pay the bills and possibly even kick-start your career.

John Horn, associate director of career development at the University of British Columbia, spoke to Metro after leading a "crash course on careers" workshop to help students get a summer job.

"There are still opportunities out there," he says, noting that July and August traditionally see a spike in summer job postings.

He says the first step is to get your resumé and cover letters polished. Second, visit your student services centre, employment centres and online job boards, and start applying.

Holm says there are two main categories of summer job: Those that pay the bills; and those that start your career. For the former, look at something you would actually enjoy, say working outside or in a location you like, while for the latter focus on positions that can develop career skills.

"Know the purpose of your summer work. Really think about the core skills and competencies that employers look for when they hire summer students — and their next vice-president," he says.

Robert Zed

Don't despair if your job search comes up empty. Some of the most successful people in Canada struck out on summer jobs and then created their own.

Holm says he recently spoke to a former student who started a house-washing business one summer. "He turned it into a medium-sized business in Vancouver."

Holm admits he rarely sees true-blood entrepreneurs, as they tend to go it alone, but he says it's worth stopping by student services. They can help you find grants and partners to start your own summer business.

For example, Robert Zed's first summer job was a miserable affair that saw him cleaning up cigarette butts in Saint John, N.B. He learned how to get government grants to start summer businesses and created a program to help senior citizens. He soon had 10 students working for him and embarked on an entrepreneurial career that has turned into the highly successful Zed Events in Halifax.

Ontario student Grieg Clark started painting houses in the summer of 1971. His business grew into College Pro Painters, which has hundreds of franchises across North America and millions of dollars in sales.

A WORLD OF POSSIBILITIES

FRENCH-LANGUAGE EDUCATION IN ONTARIO PHOTO

THE NEED FOR FRANCOPHONE EDUCATION STRONGER THAN EVER

Ontario is home to more francophone newcomers than any other province except Quebec — most of them living in Ottawa and Toronto. French-speaking newcomers from nations like France, Haiti, Lebanon, and Morocco are contributing to the cultural fabric of these cities in increasing numbers.

This is good news. But it also means that the need for a thorough, diverse, and culturally sensitive francophone education is greater than ever. French-Language Education in Ontario, a network of 12 French-language school boards, two francophone colleges, and nine francophone or bilingual universities, makes learning in Ontario's school system as smooth as possible for francophone students new to the province.

At French-language schools, students live and learn in French. They develop strong skills in the arts, mathematics, social studies, and science and technology. They develop an appreciation for the richness of their francophone communities, and for francophone culture worldwide. Most become proficient in both of Canada's official languages — increasing their chances of being admitted to the post-secondary education or training program of their choice. FLE trains its students to evolve and succeed on the world stage.

Expectations are high — for both students and educators. Through its strategy for learners of French and newcomers (apprenants du français et nouveaux arrivants, or AFENA), FLE encourages academic success and helps students integrate into Ontario's French-speaking communities and society in general.

It also ensures that teachers have the skills and sensitivity required to enrich newcomers' learning experience. Teachers are trained to evaluate new students' French-language skills, and help them improve.

Some students need to improve their English, as well. For them, there is FLE's English for Beginners (Anglais pour debutants, or APD). This program addresses their concerns and prepares them to join a regular English-language program as quickly as possible.

At an FLE school, students get all the support they need. FLE's support program for newcomers (programme d'appui aux nouveaux arrivants, or PANA), offered at both the elementary and secondary levels, ensures that students, parents, and other members of the school community are welcomed, respected, and treated fairly. Everyone has a voice.

EXCELLENT CAREER DIAGNOSIS

Are you looking for a rigorous and rewarding health-care career? Do you have exceptional interpersonal communication skills and a passion for great customer service?

If so, here is good news: The Canadian National Institute of Health (CNIH) has openings right now for both its diagnostic medical sonography (probationary) and dental hygiene (accredited) programs, scheduled to start this fall in Ottawa.

The diagnostic medical sonography program is a 20-month, first-discipline program that trains students to perform abdominal, pelvic, vascular, obstetric and gynecological ultrasound imaging. Students can enter this program directly from high school, so long as they have the necessary prerequisites in English, math, biology, and physics. The curriculum provides many opportunities for hands-on learning in state-of-the-art labs, plus eight months of clinical placements.

Ultrasound is a growing field with excellent employment prospects — and it offers great salaries, from $68,000 to $86,000 per year. Schools across Canada turn away hundreds of applicants every year, so don't miss this unique opportunity to be part of CNIH's program this fall.

CNIH's dental hygiene program trains students at the institute's onsite patient clinic. Students interact with real patients, performing teeth cleanings, whitenings, X-rays, and fashioning mouthguards as needed. The program lasts 18 months, leaving graduates well-prepared to enter the field of dentistry, where they will earn an average full-time salary, in Ontario, of $65,000.

CNIH starts programs in both the fall and spring.

There's no lack of summer activities for teens and young adults but here's a summer project I'd like to add to their list. And it comes with a carrot attached — ten $1,000 scholarships. That's worth giving up a bit of gaming, TV or chat time to enter.

The annual scholarships are provided by Brandes Investment Partners, a mutual fund company, (brandesscholarship.ca) for those 16-22 years old – entry deadline is July 20.

The warm-up is a financial personality quiz called The Money Factor. Though I'm a tad past the age of 22 I took it and discovered I'm on the boring side financially.

The quiz takes about five minutes and I scored higher as a Saver than a Spender, I'm slightly more of a Risk Avoider than a Risk Taker and my financial interest ranks on the high side, a good thing considering my job.

The quiz is fun and quite interesting with youth-friendly questions about coin tosses and what to do with found money. At the end you're encouraged to apply for one of the ten scholarships. But it's not just easy money because applicants have to submit a 250-word essay about their money personality and three things learned from the quiz.

What I particularly like about the Brandes initiative is that it tilts toward investing. The focus on money education these days tends to be about debt, credit, saving and spending — important arrows in everyone's financial quiver.

But I believe knowledge about investing is the real key to financial freedom and independence, especially for today's youth who won't enjoy the same safety net of past generations.

As well, employees are increasingly being handed the reins to their workplace pension programs and being asked to make decisions without having a clue about what they are doing. Most employees don't know anything about the investments in these plans, never mind fees charged and risk levels.

When our youth becomes investment savvy those of us who are little older will have one less worry on our plate.

Will death kill a home's price?

FUN AND FRUGAL
Leslie Scorgie

A few weeks ago I shifted my home buying criteria away from the over-heated inner-city detached house market to Plan B; an inner-city condo with high rental income potential for the future. I plan to live in the property for a year until I find a more affordable detached home for my primary residence, at which point I'd rent the condo out as an investment property.

Using my new criteria, on Friday afternoon, I found 'the one'. I walked into the home and was captivated by its character, charm, views, and layout. Better yet, the price is discounted to the market and the location couldn't be better.

Feeling good vibes, I sat down with my realtor Sunday afternoon to make an offer.... until we were interrupted by a phone call from the seller's realtor who disclosed that there had been a death by suicide on the property only a few months prior. This explained the discounted price, request for quick possession and the long length of time on the market.

I was stunned and saddened to hear of this terrible tragedy; so shocked, in fact, that my emotions took over and rather than being my usual frugal self I couldn't go through with making the offer that same day.

I sought advice from close friends and family members to see what they would do if they were in my shoes. Their opinions are split 50/50. The first group said to steer clear of the property because the local rumour mill would never forget the incident; thus resale ability and rental income potential could be jeopardized.

The other group suggested I put my feelings/superstitions aside and scoop up the deeply discounted property.

Real estate disclosure laws require sellers to disclose any fact that could be material to a buyer's decision to buy the property. Facts about the property are considered material if their disclosure would affect the value or desirability of the property. Is a death by suicide a material fact that affects the value or desirability of a property? I believe it is. But I also believe that for some buyers it matters a lot whereas for others, they don't care.

The lesson in all this is that there are material considerations that go beyond a simple home inspection of any property. Foreclosure and death, for instance, are not structural issues. But they can significantly lower the price of a property.

From a buyer's perspective, this represents an opportunity to save thousands. But, selling it down the road could be a challenge. By questioning realtors and doing independent research, buyers can determine if there are expensive disclosure issues.

I'm not certain my love of this particular home, nor the tens of thousands of dollars in savings, outweighs my sad feelings towards the tragic incident. I might have to walk away from the deal.

A buyer's dilemma

"Is a death by suicide a material fact that affects the value or desirability of a property? I believe it is. But I also believe that for some buyers it matters a lot whereas for others, they don't care."

Tea shop could be a winner with a few small tune-ups

Italian panini on olive bread. SHARI GOODMAN

LUNCH RUSH
Shari Goodman
food@metronews.ca

What you notice first when walking through the door at Fleur Tea House is the guitar waiting to be played. The promise of live music on a future visit gave me hope in this quaint tea shop tucked into Sandy Hill.

Since it's a tea house, I ordered an iced chai tea latte ($4.51). Not too sweet, it was a perfect blend of spice with hints of cardamom and ginger.

The lunch selections were limited to a handful of panini or a Greek salad. I chose the Italian panini, where spicy deli meat slices were sandwiched between olive bread from Art-is-in-Bread. The lettuce was still crispy and hadn't been wilted under the panini press. But the combination was ho-hum.

For dessert, a slice of New York-style cheesecake with cherry topping looked hopeful. But it tasted like cherries-from-a-can-store-made dull.

Fleur Tea House offers a lovely tea experience, but the food needs to be tuned up, like that lonely guitar longing to be played.

Peach Chicken Sauté. This easy one-skillet meal is ready in minutes

Ingredients

- 15 ml (1 tbsp) vegetable oil
- 1/2 large onion, thinly sliced
- 1 clove minced garlic
- 4 boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 1 can (398 ml/14 oz) cling peach slices
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) maple syrup
- 250 ml (1 cup) snow peas
- 1 small red or green pepper, thinly sliced

1. In a large skillet, heat vegetable oil over medium heat. Add onion and garlic and cook, stirring occasionally, for 2 minutes. Add chicken breasts and cook for 3 to 4 minutes on each side until browned.

2. Meanwhile, drain juice or light syrup from peaches into a measuring cup. Add to skillet along with maple syrup and stir, scraping up any brown bits from the bottom of the pan. Add peach slices, snow peas and red pepper. Cover pan with lid and cook for about 5 minutes, until chicken is cooked through.

What's a poor boy to do?

Chivalry. Dating when you're cash strapped

SARA DIMERMAN
life@metronews.ca

You would think that in today's liberated world, men wouldn't be expected to pay for every dinner or coffee date. Despite evolution amongst the sexes, my bet is that if you were to take a poll, most women would say that they expect to be treated — on the first few dates, for sure. They'd probably say that if their date suggested splitting the bill, that he was either cheap or not into her.

Gone are the days that women stayed at home to raise kids and men were the breadwinners. Today most women, young and older, work as many hours as men and some even earn more than the opposite sex. So, why then do women expect to be treated? Perhaps this is our last ditch attempt to hold onto a thread of chivalry. Most women (especially those younger) aren't offended if their dates don't walk on the side closest to the street or open her car door first. In fact, many prefer to be equal partners. But often not in the finance department.

So, what's a poor boy to do? What if he's working in a retail department store for minimum wage, paying rent and car insurance and barely has enough money left for groceries? What if he's widowed, living on a fixed income and careful about what he spends? Does this mean that he's destined to sit at home with only the television as a companion? What if he's a really good catch in so many other ways? Doesn't he deserve a chance at love too?

Sure he does, but sorry to say men, fair or no fair, chances are that you're going to have to go through your piggy bank for some loonies and toonies — even if it's just to meet a prospective mate over coffee. Because no matter how liberated women are, men are still expected to take the lead when it comes to handing over the loot on a first, and maybe even second or third date.

Here are some tips (not the money kind), for both gents and ladies:

FOR THE GENTS:
Speak up
If you're legitimately cash strapped, then speak up. Timing is key though. I'd suggest not sharing your financial position prior to the first date, because no matter how kind and caring she is, this may be a turn off. She might even suggest you find a better job, or a job period.

Wait until the end of your first, or if you can afford it — second date, and then let her know the truth. Share that you are in between jobs, living on a fixed income, having to pay child support or whatever the truth is, and ask how she feels about occasionally (or always) going dutch on your dates. Let her know that you not dining and dazzling her with expensive dates has nothing to do with how you're feeling towards her, but rather related to your financial position.

Even though this may be all the money he has, he could still be a good guy. ISTOCK

FOR THE LADIES:
Listen with concern
If he has the courage to tell you the truth, acknowledge what he's saying and share how you feel. If you are used to being dined and dazzled, let him know this and share whether you are interested in continuing seeing him under the circumstances.

If he's a really great guy, despite being cash strapped, consider whether his financial position is all important. Is financial success and independence high on your priority list? Are you willing to pay your own way in order to continue seeing him? Do you make more than enough to support both of you?

Would you like to suggest occasionally paying for him too?

FOR THE GENTS:
What to do if she backs off
If you're an older gentleman back on the dating scene, many women your age who have been part of more traditional relationships, may be uncomfortable with paying their own way. They may even see you as being ungentlemanly. Recognize that your proposal may be different to what she is used to.

Try to communicate and compromise further if you fear losing her. If she's backing off for other reasons, then perhaps she's not the right mate for you.

FOR THE LADIES:
If you suspect he's not telling the truth
If he talks about buying a new car and going with his pals to Vegas in the same breath as sharing being on a fixed income, you may be less sensitive to his plight. Call him on it. Perhaps you are concerned about where he places his priorities.

Canadian subs in for Silva at UFC 149

Light-heavyweight Thiago Silva and welterweight Thiago Alves are off the UFC 149 card July 21 in Calgary due to injury.

Silva was due to meet former 205-pound champion Mauricio (Shogun) Rua while Alves was slated to face Siyar Bahadurzada, who was an injury replacement for Yoshihiro Akiyama.

Chris Clements of London, Ont., will step in for Alves at the Scotiabank Saddledome. Clements (11-4) won a split decision in his UFC debut at UFC 145 over Keith Wisniewski.

League plans for replacement refs

The NFL will start hiring and training possible replacement officials with a deal not yet completed with the NFL Referees Association.

Talks between the league and the officials broke down after two mediation sessions that followed nine bargaining negotiations since October.

A session was held Sunday under the auspices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, and the NFLRA said the league "terminated negotiations" on Monday.

Kings steamroller continues in L.A.

NHL. Quick leads Los Angeles to shutout over Devils to take 3-0 series lead in final

The Los Angeles Kings are on the verge of greatness. It's only going to take one more win for them to be crowned Stanley Cup champions for the first time.

On a night when Wayne Gretzky dropped the puck on a ceremonial faceoff, the Kings moved one step closer to joining The Great One's 1988 Edmonton Oilers as the most dominant NHL champions in history.

Jonathan Quick continued his otherworldly play Monday by stopping all 22 shots he faced as Los Angeles drove a dagger through the hearts of the New Jersey Devils with a 4-0 victory. The Kings hold a 3-0 series lead for a fourth time this post-season.

Game 3

Kings	Devils

It appears as though the Devils share something in common with each of the Kings previous three opponents — they have no answer for Quick, who looks like a slam dunk selection to win the Conn Smythe Trophy as playoff MVP.

The goaltender was particularly sharp in the first period, when the score was still 0-0 and the Devils enjoyed a 5-on-3 advantage for 59 seconds. He got his pad on a dangerous chance from Ilya Kovalchuk to keep New Jersey from getting its first real burst of momentum in the series.

Gagne back for Game 3

Simon Gagne returned to the Los Angeles Kings' lineup for Game 3 of the Stanley Cup finals.

- The Kings repeatedly downplayed any notion Gagne could play in the post-season, but he was cleared for full contact last month.

MLB. Astros take Puerto Rican Correa No. 1 in draft

The Houston Astros selected 17-year-old shortstop Carlos Correa with the No. 1 pick in the baseball draft Monday night, making him the highest selection ever to come from Puerto Rico.

Correa has an incredibly strong arm and terrific instincts defensively, and the Astros might have found their shortstop of the future. He bested catcher Ramon Castro, who went No. 17 to Houston in 1994, as the highest-drafted Puerto Rican player.

"This means a lot," said Correa, in attendance at the draft site at MLB Network studios in Secaucus, N.J. "We've got a lot of good players there."

NHL. Pens shore up crease with addition of Vokoun

The Pittsburgh Penguins acquired Tomas Vokoun from the Washington Capitals then signed the veteran goaltender to a two-year deal.

Vokoun, whose negotiating rights were traded for a seventh-round pick in the upcoming NHL draft, will make $4 million US with Pittsburgh.

The 35-year-old goalie, who waived a no-movement clause in order for the trade to happen, was set to become an unrestricted free agent July 1.

The move gives Pittsburgh an established backup to starter Marc-Andre Fleury, who tied his career high by appearing in 67 games last season.

Heat could get boost from Bosh for Game 5 vs. Celtics

NBA. Star forward has made 'significant progress' ahead of pivotal East-final clash

Chris Bosh has been telling the Miami Heat that he's ready to play.

The Heat seem ready to listen.

And Game 5 of the Eastern Conference final — which wouldn't be lacking for drama with Boston and Miami tied at two games apiece — may have another significant layer of intrigue.

Bosh's status was upgraded to "day-to-day" by Heat coach Erik Spoelstra on Monday, the first deviation by the team after more than three weeks of simply saying his absence was indefinite because of a strained lower abdominal muscle. Spoelstra wouldn't guarantee that Bosh plays in Game 5, but opened the door to there at least being a chance of the all-star forward suiting up.

"He'll get a vote," Spoelstra said of how much Bosh's input will matter in determining when he takes the floor. "Again, everything is heightened right now. These are extreme circumstances. Everybody will be involved in the decision, if and when it happens. But you always have to take the player's opinion with a grain of salt. They all say they're ready.... He said he was ready 10 days ago."

The Celtics were ready for him then, too.

So if Tuesday is the Bosh comeback night, Boston will not be caught off-guard.

"We don't have to do anything different," Celtics coach Doc Rivers said. "We've prepared every game like Bosh is going to play. And eventually, he will." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscope

Aries | March 21 - April 20. Get out and about and see and be seen. This is one of the best times of the year for travel and social activities, and it's not a bad time for romance either.

Taurus | April 21 - May 21. You are no doubt incredibly busy at the moment but there are more important things than work going on in your world.

Gemini | May 22 - June 20. While a new relationship may be exciting the planets warn it is unlikely to stand the test of time, so don't allow yourself to get too emotionally involved.

Cancer | June 21 - July 22. You will behave in an excessive way and if there is someone you have admired from afar you may not be able to keep your feelings a secret.

Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. Before You won't have to do much to get yourself noticed today: heads will turn as you walk down the street.

Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. You will act out of character today and some people may think you have taken leave of your senses. Maybe you have, but what of it?

Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. At some point today you will realize that nothing ever really happens by chance, that all experiences — both positive and negative — are designed to help you reach your potential.

Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. Something unusual will happen today. it will be exciting and it will be the kind of thing you want to happen again.

Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21. How can you improve a relationship? To start with you could try being more forgiving.

Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20. What is your purpose? If you don't know the answer to that question you must make it your mission to find out over the next few days.

Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. Don't worry about tomorrow and the struggles it might bring, think only of the day ahead and the joys you are free to experience.

Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. Sit back and let the world entertain you today. Both at home and at work people will go out of their way to bring a smile to your face.

UFC 149

Canadian subs in for Silva at UFC 149

Light-heavyweight Thiago Silva and welterweight Thiago Alves are off the UFC 149 card July 21 in Calgary due to injury.

Silva was due to meet former 205-pound champion Mauricio (Shogun) Rua while Alves was slated to face Siyar Bahadurzada, who was an injury replacement for Yoshihiro Akiyama.

Chris Clements of London, Ont., will step in for Alves at the Scotiabank Saddledome. Clements (11-4) won a split decision in his UFC debut at UFC 145 over Keith Wisniewski.

League plans for replacement refs

The NFL will start hiring and training possible replacement officials with a deal not yet completed with the NFL Referees Association.

Talks between the league and the officials broke down after two mediation sessions that followed nine bargaining negotiations since October.

A session was held Sunday under the auspices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, and the NFLRA said the league "terminated negotiations" on Monday.

Kings steamroller continues in L.A.

NHL. Quick leads Los Angeles to shutout over Devils to take 3-0 series lead in final

The Los Angeles Kings are on the verge of greatness. It's only going to take one more win for them to be crowned Stanley Cup champions for the first time.

On a night when Wayne Gretzky dropped the puck on a ceremonial faceoff, the Kings moved one step closer to joining The Great One's 1988 Edmonton Oilers as the most dominant NHL champions in history.

Jonathan Quick continued his otherworldly play Monday by stopping all 22 shots he faced as Los Angeles drove a dagger through the hearts of the New Jersey Devils with a 4-0 victory. The Kings hold a 3-0 series lead for a fourth time this post-season.

Game 3

It appears as though the Devils share something in common with each of the Kings previous three opponents — they have no answer for Quick, who looks like a slam dunk selection to win the Conn Smythe Trophy as playoff MVP.

The goaltender was particularly sharp in the first period, when the score was still 0-0 and the Devils enjoyed a 5-on-3 advantage for 59 seconds. He got his pad on a dangerous chance from Ilya Kovalchuk to keep New Jersey from getting its first real burst of momentum in the series.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gagne back for Game 3

Simon Gagne returned to the Los Angeles Kings' lineup for Game 3 of the Stanley Cup finals.

- Gagne hadn't played since Dec. 26, when the veteran left-winger was sidelined by his latest concussion.
- The Kings repeatedly downplayed any notion Gagne could play in the post-season, but he was cleared for full contact last month.

MLB. Astros take Puerto Rican Correa No. 1 in draft

The Houston Astros selected 17-year-old shortstop Carlos Correa with the No. 1 pick in the baseball draft Monday night, making him the highest selection ever to come from Puerto Rico.

Correa has an incredibly strong arm and terrific instincts defensively, and the Astros might have found their shortstop of the future. He bested catcher Ramon Castro, who went No. 17 to Houston in 1994, as the highest-drafted Puerto Rican player.

"This means a lot," said Correa, in attendance at the draft site at MLB Network studios in Secaucus, N.J. "We've got a lot of good players there."

Mets' Santana given time to rest after no-hitter

Johan Santana will get two extra days of rest after his no-hitter.

The New York Mets say Santana's next start will come Friday night at Yankee Stadium in the opener of the Subway Series.

Santana threw a career-high 134 pitches Friday night against St. Louis in the first no-hitter in team history. Santana missed last season while rehabilitating his surgically repaired left shoulder. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NHL. Pens shore up crease with addition of Vokoun

The Pittsburgh Penguins acquired Tomas Vokoun from the Washington Capitals then signed the veteran goaltender to a two-year deal.

Vokoun, whose negotiating rights were traded for a seventh-round pick in the upcoming NHL draft, will make $4 million US with Pittsburgh.

The 35-year-old goalie, who waived a no-movement clause in order for the trade to happen, was set to become an unrestricted free agent July 1.

The move gives Pittsburgh an established backup to starter Marc-Andre Fleury, who tied his career high by appearing in 67 games last season.

Tebow invited to Sanchez's camp: Source

A person with knowledge of the invitation says Tim Tebow has been invited to Mark Sanchez's "Jets West" passing camp this summer and is expected to attend. Sanchez has held the camp in California each of the last two years. Four Jets quarterbacks attended in 2011, and Sanchez extended Tebow an invitation for this year's workouts.
